

Dear Sirs,

I sent you my revisions May 8, 2006 only to discover that I had forgot to sign and date them. So disregard the revisions that I had sent to you on that date. As I had stated before in my last letter to you is that it was not clear if you wanted me to type over just one or all three invention claims. So I did all three over again. Also, I hope you count the description of the idea as the 150 words and not adding the claim as part of the 150 words.

Thank you, Robert James Wroten
